

Some Canterbury Tales (Four Corners Familiars)

In her inventive rendition of Chaucers The Canterbury Tales for Four Corners Familiars series, artist Marvin Gaye Chetwynd (born 1973) selects her favorite of the tales--the Prologue, The Millers Tale, The Reeves Tale, The Friars Tale, The Merchants Tale, The Wife of Baths Tale, The Summoners Tale and The Pardoners Tale--and sets them against hundreds of collages. These eclectic illustrations reflect the artists participatory, communal energies: many of the photographs used were sent to her by friends and acquaintances or are found images. Chetwynd creates a marvelous milieu of interlocking allusions--medieval church imagery, Baroque ornamentation, Renaissance etching, natural-history photography and absurdist, surreal imagery combines. With their intertwined, complex threads and narrative qualities, the collages reflect Chaucers own eclecticism and produce similar moments of crude eroticism and ribaldry.
